NOUVELLE FORMULE

monaco matin

RÉSEAU SOCIAL DEPUIS 1945

DIMANCHE 10 AVRIL 2025 - 190 € - N°28298 - monacomatin.mo

TENNIS/ROLEX MONTE-CARLO MASTERS

La 118e édition est lancée

PAGE 2 ET 31

Hotel Controversy Deepens: Frogs, Funds & Fractures at the Beachfront

What was supposed to be a straightforward luxury hotel project has quickly turned into one of Monaco's most polarizing debates in recent years. With the beachfront property already acquired by German developer H-Karl GmbH, plans for a 12-story, 5-star hotel have hit a wall of local resistance.

Environmental group "The Green Hand" has been camping on-site for a week, citing destruction of local biodiversity and calling for the area to become an eco-park instead. Their protests have been echoed by the residents of Mona Covillage, who fear the loss of their seaside views — and their property value.

Meanwhile, a leaked anonymous report suggests H-Karl's Milan project caused more ecological damage than initially reported. The company has denied all allegations, but social media backlash is growing.

The mayor, Georges Marsan, has delayed the official green light for the hotel's construction, prompting concern from investors and whispers of political hesitation. "The frogs were here before the yachts," one protestor told Le Monaco Journal.

Clara Bellamy, Senior Correspondent

Spotted: H-KARL'S Rival and Mayor Seen at Tea Together

Eyewitnesses report that Mayor Georges Marsan was recently seen sharing tea and quiet conversation at the Hôtel Hermitage with representatives of Green Haven Group — a direct competitor of H-Karl GmbH, and vocal supporter of eco-conscious developments.

The sighting has sparked speculation: Could Monaco's luxury hotel deal be shifting toward a greener future? Or is the mayor simply enjoying polite company?

The mayor's office has offered no official statement, but insiders whisper that H-Karl isn't happy.

3 5 4 6 8 9 5 0 1 8 7 8 4

190€

URBANLEAKGLOBAL
@the_anonyme_monacee

🚨 BREAKING: New studies reveal serious environmental damage caused by H-Karl's "social project" in Milan. Watch this! 😱😱

Translate to French
9:00 - 20/04/25

10,8k 4,8k 2,9M

MonacoGreen @monacogreen 9:10 - 20/04/25
Replying to @the_anonyme_monacee
pfff and what are you going to do about it @GeorgeMersan ?

HealthyGirl @iamthebestgirl 9:33 - 20/04/25
Replying to @the_anonyme_monacee
I knew it. this people don't care about our health at al!! So egocentric! ew!

David Guetta @davidguetta 11:07 - 20/04/25
Replying to @the_anonyme_monacee
But ist'it becose of the construction of the new metro line in the south of the city?

PLANETFIRST @planetfirst55 11:29 - 20/04/25
Replying to @davidguetta just stay quite david.

WIKIPEDIA
The Free Encyclopedia

Donate Create account Log in

Georges Marsan

3 languages

Article Talk Read Edit View history Tools

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Georges Marsan
Mayor of Monaco
Incumbent
Assumed office 1 April 2003
Preceded by	Anne-Marie Campora
Personal details
Born	20 March 1957 (age 67)
Nationality	Monégasque
Children	1 son, 2 daughters
Parent	Gérard Marsan
Residence	Monaco
Alma mater	University of Montpellier
Occupation	Pharmacist

Georges Marsan (born 20 March 1957) is a Monégasque politician serving as mayor of Monaco since 2003. A member of the Communal Evolution (EC) party, he was first elected to the Communal Council of Monaco in 1991. Marsan is a pharmacist by trade.

Early life

Georges Marsan was born in 1957.[1] Both his father Gérard andgrandfather Antoine were pharmacists.[2] The family pharmacy was established on Rue Grimaldi in 1908.[2] Shortly after, it was relocated to the Place d'Armes in La Condamine.[2][3] Meanwhile, one of his grandfathers was a neighbourhood mayor who helped write the Constitution of Monaco in 1911 in the wake of the Monégasque Revolution.[2]

Marsan graduated from the University of Montpellier in pharmacy in 1979.[1]

Career

Marsan started his career as a pharmacist in the family business on the Place d'Armes.[2] He serves as president of the Ordre des Pharmaciens de Monaco.[4] In 1991, Marsan was asked to run for the Monaco Communal Council by now-former Mayor Anne-Marie Campora; he was elected.[1]

He has served as mayor of Monaco since 2003.[1] He has been elected five times (2003, 2007, 2011, 2015, 2019).[5] He was the sole candidate in 2011 and 2019.[6] He won by 75% in 2015.[7]

Marsan is Grand Officer of the Order of Saint-Charles.[1]

Personal Life

Marsan is married.[1] He has a son and two daughters.[1] He used to like playing with frogs a lot. Maybe to make to make some experiments?